NEWS BY THE MAILS.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Does the President's Pardon Restore all the Rights of Citizenship?

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—The United States Supreme Court room was considerably crowded today with lawyers, including some of national distinction from various parts of the country, to hear the argument on the question as to whether a pardon by the President restores to the recipient all the rights of citizenship which he enjoyed previous to the rebellion. Matt. H. Carpenter, Esq, of Wisconsin, said he had been applied to by A. H. Garland, of Arkansas, to submit a motion to the Court, and to ask for its consideration.

He stated that he resided in an extreme North western State, and had favored all the measures to suppress the rebellion, but now was prepared to extend the right hand of fellowship to his reconstructed brother; and as our flag floats from the Atlantic to the Pacific, after four years of stern, civil war, this is the time to fix deep and strong the landmarks of Constitutional law. The peculiar case of the petitioner, Mr. Garland, as well as Mr. Marr, of Louisiana, grows out of the late rebellion, in which he took a part. He has submitted himself to the authority of the Government, and for reasons held by the President to be entirely sufficient, he has been granted a full pardon. He asks to be readmitted as a councellor at this bar; but is met in this endeavor by the act of Congress passed in 1865. This law requires attorneys to take the oath that they have not participated wilfully in the rebellion, and to render allegiance and obedience to the Government. This act is a complete bar to the petitioner's rights. If it violates the spirit of the Constitution it is void. This Court has held that any legislation is void which impedes business, and renders the rights secured by the Constitution useless. The members of this Court for instance held office for life, or during good behavior, and I aver that it would not be competent for Congress to provide that they should not preside beyond a certain age. Take the case of assault and battery: It is punished by a fine, but it is not followed by civil disqualification. Suppose an attorney commits an assault and battery, and is fined; and suppose that Congress has passed a law requiring him to swear that he had never committed the offence. Would that not be unconstitutional? What is the result of the law of which complaint is made?

First—Considering the petitioner is guilty of treason. He might have been punished with death, but the President has fully pardoned him, and the effect is to restore him to his rights, civil and political, and the holding of office, as if he had never committed the offence. He engaged in the rebellion and has been subjected to forfeiture, but the President restored to him his rights, yet the act of Congress fixes a perpetual bar to his holding of office, and is in direct opposition to the pardons.

The President said of his pardon:

You shall not be precluded from practising in the Supreme Court, but by the act of Congress he is disqualified. The President is trying to pardon and the Congress to punish. The former is wiped out by the latter. The President may pardon for all offences, and this construction is sustained by the Federalist and other authorities, including former Justices of the Supreme Court. The language in the Constitution giving the President the power to grant reprieves and pardons must be construed according to the sense in which the power was understood in England at the time of the adoption of that instrument.

The Constitution is the same to-day as it was at the period it was ratified.

Those who stood by the President in the exercise of doubtful power in war should see that the Constitution be not shorn of its power in peace.

The gentleman referred to the annals of England to show what is meant by pardon, and said it discharges not only the punishment, but also the guilt of the offence itself. In the eye of the law the person is as innocent as if he had never committed the offence. In other words it makes him a new man. The pardon will enable him to prosecute for libel any one who may call him a traitor or a felon. It regenerates and renews him, and to call him a traitor is to violate the Constitution of England, and to deny the power of the King to make a new man.

The Supreme Court has similarly decided.—The President has exercised the powers in behalf of the petitioner, so as to make it impossible to inflict any punishment upon him for the crime of treason. But the act of Congress does inflict punishment. It excludes him from office. This is the effect of the law, because, having committed the offense specified, he cannot swear he never has, which absolutely disqualifies him from holding any civil office. This is a punishment.

An American citizen who thinks he can obtain an office, believes that all other things will be given unto him. When the war ceased, the Constitution resumed its sway over those parts of the country where its operations had been suspended.

The learned gentleman cited various authorities to show that disqualifications are punishments, and could be visited only upon persons who have been found guilty of offences, on due process of law. The President says to the petitioner: I pardon you; you shall not be disqualified in consequence of any treason you have committed. But Congress says to him: You shall not practice in the courts unless you take an oath that you never committed the offence, and if you swear falsely, you shall be punished.

When a pardon is granted, the recipient cannot be deprived of the restoration of his rights, because it is in effect forbidden by the Constitution of the United States. Chief Justice Marshall says we must regard the act of pardon as it is understood in England. If Congress, in opposition to the power of pardon, should be permitted to prescribe oaths for those who receive the Executive clemency, where is the limit?—They might, if ever we should have a corrupt body, require an oath as a qualification for office, that the recipient had never voted for or against a particular candidate, and thus perpetuate their power.

The right of the petitioner to the exercise of his office is a species of property, and to be considered as any other right. No man can, under the Constitution, be deprived of his rights until he is heard according to the forms of law. The authorities sustain the petitioner that he has a right in this court, of which he can be divested only by due process. The law of Congress finds an excuse in the truth that it was a war act.—When it was passed our sons were falling on many battle-fields. Mothers and friends were weeping at open graves, and the public heart was stung to madness and revenge. But now that peace has returned, let the small still voice go from this temple to quiet whatever excitement may exist, and encourage every one to the performance of duty, so that peace and prosperity may shed their blessings over a once more united people. If we get from this court such a proclamation, then those who believe in a special Providence, and that not even a sparrow falls to the ground without His special notice, will find their faith strengthened by the accession to the Chief Justiceship of one, who enjoys the reputation of always having been the generous friend of popular liberty in its most comprehensive sense.

NEW GOODS.

New Line Opened! Makes Two Trips to the Old Line's One!

A. CREECH HAS JUST RETURNED FROM the North, where he has bought his second supply of

STAPLE AND FANCY DRY GOODS,

Embracing the various New Styles of the Season, together with Ladies' Cloaks, Long Shawls, Breakfast Shawls, Ladies and Misses' Goods, Ladies and Misses' Hoop Skirts, Ladies and Misses' Balmoral Shoes, Gent's Boots and Shoes, Boys, Youths and Children's Boots and Shoes Felt Hats, the Derby the Dasher, the Planter's wide brim, and other styles for Men's wear. Boys, Youths and Children's Hats. Wood and Willow Ware, Crockery and Glass Ware, and a superior lot of Family Groceries.

Take my stock altogether, I have one among the largest and most desirable and complete stocks of Staple and Fancy Dry Goods in the City.

Now allow me to say that I bought my Goods to sell, and they must and shall be sold; but I don't expect to take a piece of poetry in one hand and a full grown humbug in the other and climb up to the clouds and fish out the birds of Paradise and gently bring them down with a placard stuck on their backs, "Selling out at Cost! selling out at cost!" No, I deal in no such humbug. I keep no such a class of Goods. I keep no time-worn shelf-rubbed, defaced or dusty Goods—dust so thick you can rub it off with a knife. My Goods are all new, and of good styles, and I intend to sell them as low as anybody that bought goods with the expectation of paying for them, and the man that sold the goods to the man that don't intend to pay for them, is a fool—and the man that sells them is a rascal. Now this is plain talk, but 'tis no slip of the tongue. I mean what I say, and say what I mean. I have lived here and sold goods here for twenty years. I expect to remain here. I pay my taxes to support Institutions of the City, County and the State. I expect to continue to do so. I respectfully ask my old customers, my old friends and new ones to call and examine my stock. I will deal with you honest and treat you right. If I don't sell you goods as cheap as you can buy the same class of goods elsewhere I don't expect you to buy. Call at the R. Smith building, house formerly occupied by Creech & Litchford, Merchants and Auctioneers.

Political Harmony---What is it?

Every man of an independent spirit entertains his own political opinions and will contend for them. If he be approachable by reasoning he is honestly open to conversion, if by prejudice liable to sudden changes. And, therefore, taking into view the many different shades of political opinion entertained in this country, the deep-seated prejudices ingrained into the hearts of our people, it is always an important era in history whenever there is a season of political harmony or unity of action. The reasons for political harmony must either be so overpowering as to check for awhile the action of all other reasons or prejudices upon the minds of the people, or the prizes held out to public ambition too far removed for the engendering of strife.—Standard.

The above sounds very well, but it is not very transparent, and the use which our neighbor makes of it, is not supported by the facts, nor is it just to our people.

When the war ended, there was no longer a shadow of a reason for party distinctions or partisan hatred. Every man who was embraced in the President's general amnesty felt, that as the President had included us in the same guilt and made us equal participants in the benefits of his mercy, that old jars, prejudices and discords should cease, and that in the work of reconstruction, at least, those who had not made themselves conspicuous and violent in severing the Union, should be admitted to the confidence of the government. All seemed to feel, that those included in the fourteen exceptions should be judged charitably, and that at least, those in whom the public had confidence, should not be rudely thrust out from the clemency of the President.

Discord, or a want of harmony, did not originate in the desire for office on the part of those who had advocated the war. Candor compels us to say, that our people who were forward in promoting the war, have not shown anxiety to take part in the work of reconstruction. Many of them, whom the people confide in, have been pressed forward by them, and hence some of them who are conscious of their loyalty and integrity, have yielded to their wishes. Many truly conservative men found at an early period after the war, that they were put under the ban, because they could not affiliate with "strait sect" principles. These were generally ignored by those having influence with the government. Consequently the people, who had a better right to know their real worth to the country, pressed them into service.

Our neighbor is mistaken in supposing that the want of harmony in the State originated with the outs. They were pressed out, as the people believed improperly, and hence their purpose to place them in the positions they merited. How our neighbor could arrive at such an idea, when it had the case of the Judges before it, who although relieved from all disability by the pardon of the President, were nevertheless thrust out in violation of all propriety, to make room for others whose political affinities suited better, it is difficult to determine. Yet it is human nature, when we wish to conceal our own faults, to charge fiercely upon others the same errors or crimes of which we are guilty ourselves.

If the thirst for office and the desire for position and place, originated the discord in the State, then the fault lies at the door of the Standard and its supporters, and not at the door of those with whom we have acted. Under the Provisional government, its friends have had the full benefit, by ostracising and putting out those who had prior claims. It was therefore reasonable to expect, that after an appeal to the people had been made and they had given a verdict condemnatory of that policy, that in reorganizing the civil government, those whom the people had endorsed, should be restored.

We want harmony, but we desire it upon fair and honorable terms. If harmony is only to be obtained by yielding to the rule of a moiety of the loyal people of the State, who are willing to give no quarter to their equals, then we must have discord. But whose fault is it? We did not seek discord. Our counsels were in favor of harmony and in order to secure it, we urged conciliation and a proper regard to the claims of all classes of our citizens. We drew no lines of demarcation—made no invidious or unjust attacks upon any portion of our people, but desired equality as the price of fraternity. Such is our position still.

Cotton Seed.—Mr. W. J. Doughty at Newport, Carteret County, has about 1000 bushels of cotton seed for sale. Those who want them can apply to him at Beaufort, N. C.

Test Oath.

The reader will be interested in the concise analysis of the argument of Mr. Carpenter before the U. S. Supreme Court on the test oath, published to-day on the first page. We shall give the reply of Mr. Speed, Attorney General, to-morrow.

We infer from the tone of some of our State journals, that they really feel gratified at the determination of Congress not to modify or abolish the oath. Such a spirit is in direct keeping with their determination to rivet the impression upon the North, that the great body of our people are disloyal and that only the mere handful of "straits" in the South, can be trusted.

We have some hope, though it is faint, with the present Court, that the U. S. Supreme Court, will pronounce the oath unconstitutional and null. If Marshall, or Taney, and McLean and Woodbury and others of the old Judges were on the Bench, we should certainly expect such a decision, and we hope there is yet enough left of the right spirit to do it still. How then would those journals chew their cuds?

The argument of Mr. Carpenter is, to our mind, unanswerable. Admitting for the sake of argument, that the Houses of Congress have the constitutional right to go behind the election of the Southern delegates, and to pry into their moral and political characters,—an assumption not at all warranted by the Constitution or by any safe precedent—yet as to all those who have been pardoned by the President—which pardon pronounces every man innocent of the very disability which the oath designs to punish, there is not the shadow of a reason in justice or right, to require the oath of those members. They come before the Congress without taint upon their garments, and the law which requires the oath is nugatory.

Gone Over.

We intimated sometime ago that the Progress was getting ready to go over to the radicals.—There is precisely where it belongs. Radicalism and "strait sectism" are synonymus. How long it will stay with them, no one can tell, unless they can say, when the radicals will be put down. The following shows plainly as well as the general tenor of the paper, that it has gone over.

Speaking of the President and Congress, a Northern paper says:

"President Johnson, on Saturday last, expressed his opinion to a leading Congressman of New England, that there was no possible danger of a disagreement between himself and Congress on the question of reconstruction."

"No possible danger of a disagreement." Who then, if there is a present difference, as some persons down here affect to believe, will give way? Certainly not Congress—not the Republican party. The President—if there is an existence difference in policy, may go to Congress, but Congress will not go to the President.—Progress.

We believe the President is prepared to yield, as the Southern people are, whatever is absolutely necessary, that is not dishonorable and flatly contrary to the constitution, to satisfy the radicals. That is, he will do what his sense of right and justice to the negro and to the South allows him to do, to end the strife; but beyond this he will not go, if he is the man we take him to be. What the Republican party or the National Union party demands, is one thing, but what the radical faction in that party demands, is another. President Johnson is biding his time and fortifying himself against the ultra demands of that faction.

The Progress says, the President will yield to it. Andrew Johnson we take it, is made of sterner stuff than the editor of the Progress is. He has gone over, utterly, and abandoned the President, but the President has not, nor will he, if there be any truth or consistency in man.

Masonry Among the Blacks.

A Northern Lodge of free masons some time since, authorized the establishment of a Lodge among the free people of color in Newbern. We believe the Lodge has been constituted.

At the recent meeting of the Grand Lodge of this State, the subject was brought before that body, on the ground if we mistake not, that the act was an innovation upon the time honored customs of the masonic order throughout the world, and further, that the said Northern Lodge had exceeded its jurisdiction. The matter was referred to a committee of which His Honor Judge Reade was chairman, who considered the subject and made a very able and elaborate report in opposition to the proceeding.

Having been promised a copy of the report for publication, we have deferred any allusion to it, hoping that it would come to hand. It is an important subject, both to the colored people and the fraternity of Masons, and we are anxious to see the report. As soon as we are permitted to do so, we shall give it to our readers.

Let it be Remembered.

The Progress and Standard we believe, stand now alone in this State in calling those who differ with them traitors, or guilty of treason. We therefore desire to give them warning, unless they regard themselves above law or below law.

In the Supreme Court of the United States on last Friday, Mr. Carpenter asserted and the Attorney General admitted its correctness, that to charge a man with being a traitor—and of course the applying to him epithets which mean the same thing—who has been pardoned by the President, was actionable. Such a charge subjects the maker of it to suit and damages. These papers have made this charge very flippantly against persons at different times, so direct as to make them liable. The charge is defamatory and insulting, and should not be borne in silence.

Telegraphic Dispatches.

We are gratified in being able to state that the agent of the Associated Press at Washington, has consented to send his dispatches to the Raleigh press at an early hour. We hope therefore soon to resume our habit of sending off our Western mail by the train which leaves here at 9 o'clock P. M.

DISTRESSING.—We learn that an altercation occurred on the 16th, at Littleton, Halifax Co., between Dr. J. R. Moore and a Mr. Daniel Walker, a shoemaker, in which Dr. Moore stabbed Mr. Walker, who died in about two hours.

Negro Suffrage in the South.

If the Northern negro, who has always been free, and had opportunities for mental improvement, is deemed unfit to vote by the Northern States, they are in no position to insist that the Southern negro, whose faculties have been kept dwarfed and benighted by life-long slavery, shall be admitted to the Southern polls. The abstract question whether the black man ought to be allowed to vote has nothing to do with the case. The point is, that until we of the North establish that suffrage for ourselves, we have no right to force it upon others. The Divine apothegm, "Physician heal thyself," would confound us the very first instant we should undertake to deal with a constitutional amendment on this subject, relating to the late insurrectionary States. There is no way but to leave this matter where the Constitution left it, to the discretion of each individual State. No action by Congress upon the subject of freedmen suffrage can have any practical result. All talk about it is unwarrantable, because it is morally certain that nothing substantial can come from it, and it is only calculated to delay reconstruction unnecessarily.—New York Times.

The above sensible, sober thoughts, one would think, ought at least to set the ultra men of the North to thinking, if indeed they ever think.—The world must stand amazed at the hypocritical professions of sympathy for the colored race made by those men, so long as there are thousands of blacks at the North who have been declared free for years, who still enjoy but little more freedom and have far less bread to eat, than the colored people of the South enjoyed, even in the midst of slavery.

Political power—the continuance of the party in power, is the great idea which impels the radicals to pursue this policy. But we believe they have overshot the mark. The great National Union party of which they form a faction, we believe will triumph; but it will be under the lead of Andrew Johnson and the liberal men who control that party.

Bishop Atkinson in Petersburg.

The Bishop on last night was to deliver a lecture at the Library Hall in Petersburg for the benefit of Grace Church. The Petersburgers were expecting quite a treat.

For the Sentinel.

More than half a century ago, a candidate for Congress from the Fayetteville District, being assured of his approaching defeat, resorted to the following ruse to avert that calamity. He vehemently denied that he had ever stolen a Bull! and poured hot shot into the infamous rascals, who had circulated the vile report. Now it so happened, that nobody had ever heard of it before. In fact no charge of the sort had ever been made, or could have been made with any semblance of truth. Nevertheless the cunning campaigner rung the charges on the stolen bull, and the unmitigated meanness of these miserable slanderers and cowards whom he could not trace, and who carefully shrunk from investigation. He pronounced them worse than midnight assassins, and defied them all to show themselves to the light, and he would demolish the whole generation of vipers in a twinkling—if not sooner. Of course no one appeared, but the public sympathy was intensely excited, and he triumphantly rode into Congress on the Bull.

During the last Gubernational canvass a stratagem somewhat similar in design, but with very different results, was attempted. It was discovered that a plot existed among the friends of Governor Worth, at some future day when we dared to do so, to repeal, annul and make void the Ordinance of the late Convention, repudiating the various debts contracted in support of the war. Gov. Worth was charged specifically with being part and parcel of such plot. True, he had never heard of any such design, as he solemnly avered; True, not one of his supporters knew any thing about it. Nobody had ever heard or dreamed of such a thing. The first intimation of its existence appeared in the Court Journal, which affirmed and reaffirmed, iterated and re-iterated it, in every conceivable form, with intrepid impudence, with no proof, and against all proof, even up to the very day of election. The consequence was that the candidate whom it supported gained some hundreds of votes in Randolph, and some other counties where that repudiation was known to be popular, but failed—slightly—to ride into office on that Bull. It was very provoking, but it could not be helped. It was a very pretty ruse, but it failed. The shoe was a beautiful one, but some how it did not fit. People have become shrewder than they were sixty years ago—particularly in the tactics of political party warfare. They have learned much in that way within the last twenty years or so. The Standard itself has taught them. When an ingenious Roorback makes its appearance just before an important election, the people are much more accustomed now to wink one eye, place their dexter thumb on the nasal, extend the digits, and say—"fool who?" They are used to these things, and few are sufficiently verdant now to be caught.

It is true enough that the people of this honest old State abhorred the very idea of repudiation. In her prosperous and palmy days it was a word not to be even whispered. He was a brave man who would have dared to speak it aloud. He would have been answered with indignant scorn—perhaps with a blow. President Johnson knew this, and delayed to the last to make this a sine qua non to our restoration. He evidently yielded to an outward pressure which he disliked, but could not resist. The shrewd men of the North saw the advantage to them of this repudiation. They knew that the old State bonds were largely in their hands. They knew also that a very large debt had been contracted during the war, and principally owned by our own citizens—that guardians, administrators and all who during these four years had money to invest, purchased these bonds. Our old sixes had been available in blockade operations, and had nearly all gone to the North. The war bonds were tabooed abroad and confined to ourselves. The State not being able to pay all, soon if ever, it became desirable to strengthen those abroad, and by wiping out the war debts the State became so much the better able to pay those which had gone North of the Potomac.—The other Southern States are probably in the same condition. We all knew that we were financially heaping up ruin on our own citizens, while thus repudiating for the benefit of the Northern capitalists; but we were found ready to make even that sacrifice, so ardently did we wish, on almost any terms not palpably violating our honor, to be again restored to the old Union. And having made this immense sacrifice of our own people, as a holocaust to propitiate those who were going it even then pretty strong, as we felt, we cannot if we would now break the hard bargain. We have made it; and its obligations will be on our part sacred, and punctiliously performed. We know well what we have done. But the act was done with our eyes open. It became necessary, to accomplish an object more desirable than money. We accepted the necessity, and will abide the consequences. Let us at least not again, now or hereafter, be taunted by our own citizens whose duty it is to sustain our public honor, with the design of violating our plighted faith. The charge has been made, and if ever again repeated it will be by men and those only, who cannot comprehend the practice of high virtue.

It is high time for us all to leave off these dirty tricks. Crimination and recrimination should hereafter cease. They have heretofore done us no credit. We are scoffed at and laughed at by our better behaved neighbors.—The press of North Carolina has lowered itself greatly by these petty, malignant and ungentlemanly personal squabbles. We are all in the same ship. We have already yielded much for the sake of restoration to the Union. If other and more humiliating concessions are demanded before we can be admitted as equals to the enjoyment of our constitutional rights, let us at least act together as patriots and as men. Let us no longer disgrace ourselves, by these family bickerings, but gird up our loins and act with dignity. If the ship must dash us and our "freighted hopes" on the breakers, let us fold our robes about us, and die like brave men, and losing everything else, let us at least save our honor. It is unworthy for any to be looking out for the life-boat to save their precious persons when the ship is sinking. It would be especially and inhumanly cruel in those who have the command of the ship of State to drive her straight on to the breakers and wreck all except themselves, because they may happen to have means of escape which are denied to others. In the name of our country, let us act as one—and if die we must, let us not disgrace our death struggle by diabolical efforts to sink each other, but manfully do our utmost as a mutual sustentation. R.

The Copperhead Disunionists

Mr. Forney of the Washington Chronicle, who has facilities for unvailing the mysteries of the inner radical temple at Washington, says: "Whether the Southern States lately in rebellion are to be represented in full or in part, within the next sixty days, or within six months, will depend almost entirely upon the character of the men who offer their credentials." It must be a puzzle to those who are acquainted with our professed form of Government, to conjecture by what process of reasoning, or by what application of law or principle, the rights of States must depend upon the character of men. An individual may lack the qualifications essential to his fulfillment of the functions of a public office, but that circumstance does not imply that the office itself should be held canceled or vacant. It is possible that constituencies may err in their selection of a representative, but that is not a reason why they should be denied representation. A Congressional member elect, upon presenting his credentials, without regard to his character as an individual. If there should be anything objectionable in his personality, it is a matter for subsequent investigation; and whatever may be his crime or his disqualification, it does not vitiate the prerogative of his constituents to enjoy Congressional representation. A certificate of election is not a certificate of private character; it is simply a formal attestation that the regular formula of election have been observed. It is a political letter of credit which, if genuine and duly authenticated, those to whom it is addressed are bound to honor to the extent of their liability, with reference to the personal history of moral attributes of the holder.

The question is, are the Southern States in the Union or out of it? If in the Union, they are entitled to Congressional representation; if out of it, the doctrine has been established that the Confederation is subject to dissolution, and that its integrity depends upon the will of any faction that may have a majority in Congress. This important question is to be submitted to a committee of fifteen, who are to be invested with the extraordinary and absolute power to determine whether the Union is in existence or has descended into the tomb of the political fabrics of the past. There can be no hiatus between Union and Disunion—no immediate nondescript reign in our political system for the convenience of the Radicals, and to enable them to fasten their doctrines on the Republic. If Federal legislation declares the Union dissolved for but a day, the bond is broken, the political system is destroyed, the soul has taken his flight from the body politic, and, until the people have organized another form of government we remain in a condition of anarchy or of subjection to the absolutism of the faction that wields the greatest power. We can conceive a period of insubordination to the laws and Constitution, or a temporary suspension of the functions of legitimate government under the influences of civil strife; but when in time of peace and central legislation the partnership of States is annulled, and the machinery of government moves under the control of an arbitrary power, judgment of disunion is recorded, from which there is no appeal except to a revolutionary tribunal of the people.—N. Y. News.

General Grant's Observations in the South.

The best agent Mr. Johnson ever had in the South is General Grant.

He has a reputation for sense and "manhood" which will give his statements a weight that could never be attached, North or South, to the opinions of mere politicians.

So well satisfied are we of this, that we do not hesitate to say that, if General Grant were to point out to Mr. Johnson any special evil existing among us, which evil we could remedy, we would consider the suggestion with respectful attention.

And this, because we believe him to be honest, and modest, and generous—capable of appreciating, as he has shown, the character and feelings of the men, who, but yesterday, charged with a headlong fury upon his lines, or barred with a grim resolution his march to Richmond.

Mr. Johnson has in this, as in many other things, shown a wise forecast; and, we have the satisfaction of knowing, that the honesty of the South has been vindicated by the report of General Grant.—Norfolk Vig.

AFRICAN COLONIZATION.—Col. Brown, Assistant Commissioner of the Freedmen's Bureau in Virginia, has submitted a proposition to Gen. Howard for the removal of all the colored population of Virginia to the unoccupied Government lands in Florida.

Among the captures of rebel property in North Carolina was a lot of rebel paper money bearing the imprint of the National Bank Note Company.—The engraving is well executed and the bills printed in green ink, suppose to be peculiar to Northern artists. The Company has been called on for an explanation by the Secretary of the Treasury.

DIED,

In Wilmington, on the morning of the 16th inst., of confluent small pox, JOHN A. KIRKLAND, in the 26th year of his age, a native of Greensboro', N. C., but for many years a resident of Alabama. He leaves a wife and an infant child to mourn his death.

IN MEMORIAM.

Died, at the residence of her grandfather, Hon. Charles Manly, on the evening of Sunday, the 17th inst., ELIZA, only child of the late Col. George B. Singletary, Confederate States Army, in the 11th year of her age.

It is fitting that the daughter of a fallen soldier should be what she was. Bright, intelligent, high spirited and high toned, kind hearted, gentle, generous and loving, she has followed her gallant father, and the pathway left by her little footsteps is marked by many a flower, scattered by the way, bright with every memory that can make childhood lovely.

For her—taken in her purity from evil present and to come, into the bright household of the Almighty Father—it is scarcely well that tears be shed. Better that roses should fall upon the little grave. But for the bitter grief of the living, for the darkening of the widowed life whose brightest light has gone out, human words, however deep the sympathy from which they spring, can bring but little comfort; nor do they find their utterance through the columns of a newspaper.

And yet, "For the fatherless children and widows, and all who are desolate and oppressed, we beseech thee to hear us, good Lord."

CITY AND STATE ITEMS.

MAYOR HARRISON.—We are glad to see Mayor Harrison again on the street and partially able to attend to his duties. He has been confined for weeks by severe illness but will soon be able to give his constant attention to the preservation of order. During his sickness, C. B. Root, Esq, has filled the office of Mayor, with efficiancy and satisfaction to the public.

THE MURDER OF MR. FORT.—We learn that facts are still coming out which go to fix more definitely and strongly, suspicions that our police are on the right track. We believe there is more than one party involved, and we hope that further investigation will lead to the discovery of all who are guilty.

OUR POST OFFICE.—We have a capital Post Master and he has good, accommodating clerks, and all are attentive. It would however greatly accommodate the public and the members of the press, if the office were kept open until nine o'clock, P. M. and if arrangements were made to send the mails to the cars just in time for the departure of the trains.

MAJ. BANKS' SCHOOL.—We call attention to the advertisement of Maj. Banks' Male School at Fayetteville. The school has a good reputation.

It will be seen that Mr. Theim not only has many good things for Christmas at his store, but also a good dwelling to rent.

Attention is called to the Classical School of our young townsman, Capt. W. Hal. Harrison.

John W. Forney on Jefferson Davis.

John W. Forney, the editor of the Chronicle, in September, 1861, when it was reported that Mr. Jefferson Davis was dead, expressed his views of his character. He said:

"The intelligence of the death of Jefferson Davis seems to be confirmed. When S. A. Douglas was called away, a fiendish exultation was exhibited in many of the secession papers. The malignity with which they punished his independence survived his death and rioted over his grave. Let us set a better example, now that the great leader of secession tyrrany has been summoned before the eternal bar. He was an imperious and positive public man. He rarely surrendered an opinion once formed, until he degraded himself by throwing behind him his voluntary professions in favor of the Union. He was a close student, a chivalric opponent, a steadfast friend, a gentleman in all his relations, and in his own family singularity kind and genial.

"Although undoubtedly the head and heart of the rebellion, he went into it reluctantly, as all who heard his last speech in the Senate will remember, when, with broken accents and tearful eyes, he bade farewell to that body and to all his greatness.—Jefferson Davis was blessed with many accomplishments. He was alike a soldier and a statesman.—No public man of my acquaintance was more devoted to scientific pursuits, and more familliar with the abstruse teaching of polltical philosophy. No branch of human knowledge seemed to be unworthy of his investigation. He was equally attentive to classical literature, to the details of military life, to the doctrines of political parties, to the study of men; and if Professor Bache, of the Coast Survey, could speak, he would say of the fine works, of which he is the accomplished head, and which has latterly proved its unconquerable usefulness, that Jefferson Davis was as conversant with the smallest minutiæ of that noble institution as any other man not directly connected with it. He was passionately devoted to the Smithsonian Institute, of which he was a Regent in former times. He was devoted to the decoration of this capital, and stood by Captain (now General) Meigs in all his efforts to construct the water works, to finish the capitol building on the grandest scale, and to push forward the extension of the Interior and Treasury Departments. He was undoubtedly a great Secretary of War, and in this high office nothing so much delighted him as to take young men by the hand, and if worthy, advance them. If he educated Beauregard to destroy the Republic, he conferred many advantages upon McClellan to save it. If he assisted Lee and Johnston, and thus strengthened their hands for injury against the flag, he greatly favored Meigs and Franklin."

Soldiers Orphan Fund.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Orphan Fund, held at 11 o'clock, December 14th, 1865, at the Executive Office, the following gentlemen were present:

Hon. M. E. Manly, Dr. C. F. Deems, J. G. Williams, Hon. J. H. Bryan, Rev. Thos. E. Skinner, Rev. W. H. Cunninggim, S. S. Harrison, Giles Leitch, H. G. Williams, Dr. Moore, Rev L. Branson, R. W. Best and S. H. Young.

Hon. M. E. Manly was called to the chair.

Dr. Deems explained the object of the meeting.

On motion of H. G. Williams, Esq., it was unanimously agreed that all contributions, whether in personal funds, jewelry, or otherwise, be returned to the donors.

On motion of H. G. Williams, it was unanimously

Resolved, That the property purchased of Rev. Dr. Deems, in the town of Wilson, be returned to him, and that the Treasurer, J. G. Williams, Esq, hand to Dr. Deems the deed for the same.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That this meeting tender to Dr. Deems, in behalf of the citizens of North Carolina, their sincere thanks for the great interest and indefatigable labors which he has manifested in the great and good work of educating the orphans of the State. And though that success has not attended his efforts which all prayed might attend them, yet we believe the labor is not lost, nor will the laborer be unrewarded; that at some future day we may yet see this grand object accomplished.

Resolved, That these proceedings be published in the City papers.

M. E. MANLY, Chm'n.

SAMUEL H YOUNG, Sec'y.

Jeff. Davis--He is Visited by his Old Richmond Pastor, and Takes the Sacrament.

FORTRESS MONROE, Dec. 13, 1865.—Mr. Davis' old clergyman of St. Paul's church, in Richmond, the church which he attended during the war, and from which he made that, marvellously rapid exit on the last Sunday of his attendance there, has been allowed to spend a day with him. The sacrament was administered to him, and everything done that could be, by his old religious teacher and adviser, through scriptural reading and prayer, to give him cheerful resignation. During his imprisonment, Mr. Davis' only religious attendant and adviser has been the Post Chaplain, Rev. Mr. Chiv. vis a most amiable and excellent man, and worthy and devout clergyman. It was natural he should like to be attended by his old pastor, and no one will be inclined, I am sure, to blame him for asking the privilege of his attendance upon him, or find fault with the request being complied with.

Gen. Longstreet made a visit to Aberdeen, Miss., and on the night of his arrival the house in which he slept was set on fire by the negroes, it was supposed. The General escaped the earthly fire, and the citizens gave a public dinner in his honor a few days afterward.

Congress.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.

SENATE.

Mr. Sumner made a speech on the bill to maintain the freedom of the inhabitants of the States lately in rebellion, and read a number of letters both public and private, to show that the spirit of rebellion still existed.

Mr. Saulsbury replying said, there were indications of a split in the Republican party, and said if the President would stand by the principles of his special message, he would promise him the support of two millions, who did not vote for him.

Mr. Cowan also replied to Mr. Sumner, stating that his statemen's were based upon anonymous letters.

HOUSE.

Mr. Stevens introduced a bill to double the pensions of those who were made pensioners by the casualties of the late war, to pay the damage done to loyal men by the rebel government, rebel raiders, and enforce confiscation laws so as to pay the same out of the confiscated property of enemies. Both Houses agreed to adjourn from to-morrow to the 5th of January.

Troops Reduced.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.

The War Department has ordered the reduction of the white troops in Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi to seven thousand men.

Gold.

Yesterday, a week ago, gold, in New York, advanced to 148½, under the impression that the President's Message would be threatening in relation to Mexico, the Monroe doctrine and the ravages of rebel cruisers fitted out from English ports, but the message having been published, and being construed to mean peace, gold declined to 146½, which is the last quotation we have received from the North. In this city, brokers, guided of course, by the New York market, are offering 144, and offering to sell at 145 to 146.

The question of war or peace now mainly affects the price of gold, and with good reason, for a war with one of the great powers, at any time within the next year or two, must necessitate the issue of more greenbacks to meet the increased expenses of the Government, and with their increase in volume they would depreciate in value. And a foreign war, while yet the Southern States are debarred reconstruction, by the radicals in Congress, would further infinitely enhance the value of gold by shaking public confidence—The nation going into war as a unit, with all its States and Territories represented in Congress, and unanimous against a common enemy, and with all its States recovering their industrial wealth, under restored political privileges, must enjoy a far different and higher credit at home and abroad than the same nation with a third of its States and population excluded from the national councils and groaning in hopeless poverty. It might be worth the consideration of those at Washington, whether the condition in which the Union is kept by the exclusion of the Southern States from their rights and privileges under the Constitution, will not embolden France and England in their bearing towards the United States.

But there are other lesser but real causes for the present fall in gold in addition to the present supposed peaceful aspect of the national horizon. The Government, on the 15th instant, will pay out eleven millions dollars in gold, the semi-annual interest on three hundred millions of seven-thirty notes. The Treasury is, there being no prospect of war, master of the gold market, thro' the large sums now paid for duties on imports and the new certificates, whereby a gold currency to an amount of the gold deposits, and one fifth over is, in effect, obtained; the belief now general that Congress will not [always supposing there is peace], authorize any further expansion of the currency, and lastly, but we do not know that it is the least potent cause, the report repeated simultaneously in New York and throughout the Union, that the President is unequivocably in favor of the immediate admission of Southern Senators and Representatives to their seats in Congress.—Richmond Times.

Affairs in Louisiana.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12.

A number of the Louisiana country newspapers state that the white military organizations under the Governor's orders cannot be effective to much extent as they have no arms.

In some of the parishes, Terre Bonne and Natchitoches, for example, the negroes are evil disposed towards the whites, and the papers charge that evil-disposed white persons are at the bottom of this state of things.

In the parish of Natchitoches the papers say that it is evident to all that the militia of the State must be organized and armed soon, to afford the necessary protection to the whites.

The course of the military authorities in interfering by force of arms to protect a government cotton agent—charged before the State Court with stealing cotton—from arrest by the Sheriff, has been approved by Gen. Canby. Only the Sheriff's account of the affair has been published.

GEN. GRANT ON THE REBELS.—Lieutenant General U. S. Grant, with several members of his staff, passed through this place on Sunday morning en route for Washington City. He was returning from a tour through several of the Southern States. At Jonesborough, Dr. Sevier introduced him to a large crowd. Among the crowd was one who had fought pretty hard on t'other side, who while hobbling up to the General, remarked: "I fought that man pretty hard, but I would like to see him." The General answered: "that does not keep you from being a good citizen; I had as soon see you as anybody." If those in authority in this State would recognize this fact, and act accordingly, we would have quite a different state of affairs.—Bristol Tenn. News.

THE KENTUCKY EXPATRIATION LAW REPEALED.—This statute, under color of which the military outrages have been perpetrated in Kentucky at late elections, has been repealed. It disfranchised those who had been in the Southern army, and did not allow them to vote.

TRIAL FOR TREASON.—The first treason case, consequent upon the late rebellion, is now being tried in the United States District Court of Tennessee, before Judge Trigg. The case is the United States vs. John S. Gamble, who was enrolling officer under the Confederate Government, in Blount county, East Tennessee. This is the first treason trial since the memorable Aaron Burr case.

The Rev. W. H. Milburn, known as the "blind preacher," has abandoned the Methodist for the Episcopal church.

SUICIDE.—We learn that Benj. Best, Esq., a highly respected citizen of this county, committed suicide yesterday morning by cutting his throat.—Goldsboro' News.

Now and Then.

"Twelve months ago, newspapers in this State were filled with articles denunciatory of the then Government. The blessings of civil liberty were proclaimed, military rule was denounced, and the glories of habeas corpus were eloquently dilated upon.

Nor were certain orators one whit behind the newspaper editors and correspondents. Our legislative halls resounded with the florid speeches and impassioned declarations of Legislators. The "dear people" were told when, where and how, the bold barons of England wrested magna charta from the tyrant John; were instructed how seldom the rulers of England had dared to suspend the inestimable boon of habeas corpus; denunciation and abuse were levelled at our Judges who had shown a disposition to respect the enactments of the Congress of the then Confederate States, and vials of wordy wrath were poured upon their devoted heads. We heard one of these orators, a gentleman remarkable for his clear head, solid legal learning, and great reasoning powers, in speaking upon a subject, then engaging the attention of the Legislature of North Carolina, in reply to one who had deprecated the wholesale abuse of the Government of the Confederate States, say in substance as follows:

"It is because it is our government, one of our choice and created by us; it is because we desire to render it stable and popular at home and abroad that we thus denounce its usurpation and abuses. It is not because we are hostile to the government—we claim to be better friends to it, than those who are always ready with excuses for any abuse of power, or any violation of the fundamental principles of free governments."

Twelve short months had not passed, before this same orator was found voting in the Convention of North Carolina, that this same Government which he claimed to have aided in creating, and which he was so anxious to render stable, permanent and popular, never had legal existence, and that its pretended acts were null and void ab initio.

The State of North Carolina is under military rule to-day, the civil authority is to a great extent suspended, and with it the glorious privilege of habeas corpus; but where are the writers of 1864? Their pens are still, their ink sleeps undisturbed in its stands, and the columns of their favorite journals are closed to them on these and kindred subjects. The orators are "dumb as oysters;" as "silent as the grave." Why is this? They are surely now living under a government of their choice, if not of their creation—they are interested in rendering it stable, permanent and popular, then why this studied silence? For one, we are anxious to have civil rule re-established, and all the blessings of civil government restored; but we had no fears of any great abuse of power under the military rule, of the then Confederate States, and we have none for that now over us, and we patiently abide the time when the authorities at Washington shall withdraw their troops; proclaim martial law at an end; and the civil rights of North Carolina fully restored. But how the orators and writers of twelve months ago can be quiet, and possess their souls in patience, under present circumstances, we confess, we are at a loss to determine.—Goldsboro' News.

Important Letter from the Secretary of State.

Alabama Restored to her Constitutional Authority.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—The Secretary of State has addressed a letter to Provisional Gov. Parsons of Alabama, saying that, in the judgment of the President, the hour had arrived when the care and conduct of the proper affairs of the State of Alabama may be remitted to the constitutional authorities, chosen by the people thereof, and, by direction of the President, relieving him of the trust which had been reposed in him. He also says: "It gives me especial pleasure to convey to you the President's acknowledgements of the fidelity, loyalty and discretion which has marked your administration.

The Secretary of State has also written a letter to the Governor of Alabama, assuring him of the co-operation of the Government of the United States, whenever it may be found necessary, in effecting the early restoration and permanent prosperity and welfare of his State.

Letter from Ex-Gov. Isham G. Harris.

Ex-Governor Isham G. Harris, of Tennessee, who is now in Cordova, Mexico, has written a letter to Mr. George W Adair, of Atlanta, from which we extract the following:

"Our reception upon the part of the Government officials here was all that we could have expected or desired. We were invited to an audience with the Emperor at the Palace, the far-famed Halls of the Montezumas. At the time fixed we called, and were most kindly received by the Emperor and Empress, and were assured of their sympathy in our misfortunes, and of their earnest hope that we might find homes for ourselves and friends in Mexico. The Empress was our interpreter in the interview. She speaks fluently the French, Spanish, German and English languages, and is in all respects a great woman.

We overtook at the city of Mexico, Gen. Magruder, Commodore Maury, Governor Allen of Louisiana, Judge Perkins of Louisiana, Governor Reynolds, of Missouri, and Governor Murray and Governor Clark of Texas, with many other and lesser Confederate lights. On the 5th of September, the Emperor published a decree opening all of Mexico to immigration and colonization, and Commodore Maury and myself and other Confederates were requested to prepare regulations to accompany the decree, which we did, and which were approved by the Emperor on the 27th. The decree and regulations offer liberal inducements to immigration, amongst which are a donation of public lands at the rate of 320 acres to each head of a family, and 320 to each single man, a free passage to the country for all who are not able to pay their own expenses, freedom from taxation for one year, and perpetual duty for five years, religious toleration, &c.
